Introduction

Foreword

This report was prepared to give property managers, professionals, and asset owners a guide to office properties with an assessed value over $5 million. Please note that the threshold for properties in Vancouver is an assessed value of $10 million. The report concentrates on the main commercial centres of the Lower Mainland, Vancouver Island, and Kelowna. Data hereby included is sourced from BC Assessment tax roll based on properties classified by BC Assessment as “208 Office”.

Report Format

The buildings are divided geographically into the following areas:

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|--------------------------|
| ▪ Vancouver | Assessment Area # 09 |
| ▪ Burnaby / New West / Tri-Cities | Assessment Area # 10 |
| ▪ North Shore / Squamish | Assessment Area # 08 |
| ▪ Richmond / Delta | Assessment Area # 11 |
| ▪ Surrey / White Rock | Assessment Area # 14 |
| ▪ Fraser Valley | Assessment Area # 15 |
| ▪ Greater Victoria | Assessment Area #01 |
| ▪ Kelowna | Assessment Area #19, #20 |

The properties are further sorted by street name and number. Over 900 office buildings with an assessed value over $5,000,000 have been surveyed for this report.

Notice to Participants

Please be advised that although every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of this survey, we cannot make any guarantees of information contained herein. We have used information provided by B.C. Assessment, any misrepresentation of data for any building is unintended, and we apologize for any inconvenience caused. Additionally, revisions made at various review panels may not be reflected in the survey.

Information for Landlords and Tenants of Commercial Property

All British Columbia property owners can expect to receive their annual property assessment notice in early January. The assessment notice shows the property's assessed value, classification, and other important information about the property. For tax planning purposes, landlords should provide a copy of their assessment notice to each tenant who pays taxes on their leased property.

If a property is classified as Business/Other, Major Industry or Light Industry, landlords are legally required to provide a copy of their property's assessment notice no later than the appeal deadline of January 31st to tenants who have requested the information.

If you are a tenant of a property classified as business/other, major industry or light industry, you can discuss how your property was assessed and classified with BC Assessment, provided that a letter of authorization from the property owner has been submitted. The letter needs to specify that the property owner agrees to the tenant's access of the assessment information.

The Assessment Process (Three Steps)

- 1. Information Collection: Information is collected and analyzed by BC Assessment assessors for all properties in British Columbia. (Most often this information collection occurs when properties are created/constructed but can also occur at other times like when properties are renovated.)
- 2. Information Analysis: Property sales are analyzed by BC Assessment assessors to understand the property market as of July 1st of each year. Most current market information is used to set annual assessments.
- 3. Create and Deliver Assessment Notices: Assessment notices are created and mailed to all property owners on December 31st.

Key Dates

January 31st: Property Assessment Review Panel Deadline

- Property owners wishing to request an independent review of their assessment must file their written notice of complaint with the assessor by this date.

July 1st: Valuation Date

- The date market value of properties is determined for the purpose of assessment rolls.

October 31st: Physical Condition and Permitted Use

- The assessment reflects the physical condition and permitted use (zoning) of property as of this date, except if substantial damage or destruction of the building has occurred.

December 31st: Assessment Notices

- Completed assessment information is produced, mailed to property owners and becomes available online. Assessment information is also delivered to tax authorities.

Market Value

In general terms, market value is the price expected if a reasonable amount of time is allowed to find a purchaser and if both the seller and prospective buyer are fully informed. For assessment purposes in British Columbia, market value is the most probable price that an unencumbered property will sell for on the open market on July 1st. The physical condition of the property is evaluated on October 31st of the reference year.

To determine the market value of your property, BC Assessment considers the market conditions that affect your property, including vacancy rates, sales transactions, rental rates and other factors. The assessment shown on your property notice is the market value of the land and improvements as of July 1 of the prior year. This provides an equitable base for property taxation. In turn, the province and local governments use assessments to apportion how much property tax each property owner pays.

If you have not received your Property Assessment Notice, or if you have questions about your properties value or classification, contact your local BC Assessment office.

Appraisal Methods

There are three fundamental approaches to value, which both public and private appraisers use to develop market value estimates. A summary of each of these approaches is as below:

Direct Comparison Approach

The Direct Comparison Approach to value is based on the assumption that an informed purchaser would pay no more for a given property than it would cost to acquire a comparable property. Therefore, the sale prices of comparable properties are first adjusted to reflect value trends in the market. For example, if the sale of a comparable property took place on May 1 and the value date for the subject property is July 1, B.C. Assessment would adjust the sale price. The adjustment is based on market movement occurring between May 1 and July 1 of that year.

Since no two properties are exactly alike (either in terms of location or physical characteristics), adjustments to the sale price of each comparable property are required to account for their differences. Once the sale price of a comparable property is adjusted, the reconstructed value reflects the "probable selling price" of the property being appraised. This process is repeated for all comparable sales and produces a range of values against which the subject property can be compared. Using the Direct Comparison Approach to value is most appropriate when the market is active and many properties with similar characteristics are transacting.

Cost Approach

The cost approach to value is based on the assumption that an informed purchaser would pay no more for a property (land and building) than it would cost to purchase a similar piece of land on which a building is constructed with characteristics comparable to the property being purchased.

The appraiser estimates the land value, and then adds the cost of replacing the buildings(s) and other improvements (less depreciation).

Value of Land + Cost of Improvements (i.e. Building) - Depreciation = Total Value of Property

When applying this approach to value, costs must be adjusted to the valuation date, reflect market values in the property's geographic location, and include all indirect costs (such as the developer or owner's profits and the cost of financing during construction). Once the costs of constructing the subject building have been determined, the appraiser estimates a deduction for:

- Physical Depreciation - loss of value due to normal wear.
- Functional Depreciation - loss of value due to the structure's inability to function effectively.
- Economic Depreciation - loss of value due to location and other external factors.

The cost approach is used most often when the property under review is new or nearly new, or when there are no comparable sales or the improvements are relatively unique or specialized.

Income Approach

The income approach to value is based on the assumption that the value of the property is directly related to the income it will generate over its economic life. When applying this approach, net operating income is estimated:

Potential Gross Income - Vacancy/Bad Debt = Effective Gross Income - Operating Expenses = NOI

The assessor determines the potential gross rental income the property could produce by analysing rents captured by the subject property, as well as those achieved by comparable properties located in the same market. An allowance is then made for vacancy and collection loss (which varies depending on the property type and location). Operating expenses are deducted from effective gross income which determines the annual net operating income.

*Note: No deduction is allowed for mortgage interest as different owners have different mortgage requirements. Determining net operating income without debt service charges places all property owners on the same footing and is an important principle in assessment law.

Based on the return expectations a typical investor would have for the property, the annual net income is converted to a capital value using a market-derived capitalization rate:

Value = Net Operating Income/Capitalization Rate

The appraiser analyses sales that occurred in the marketplace to determine what rates of return investors are seeking for various types of properties. The capitalization rate increases proportionally with risk. The income approach is widely applied when appraising income-producing properties such as the commercial office buildings in this report.

Assessment & Vacancy Trends – Downtown Vancouver

The following provides a general assessment trend for office buildings in downtown Vancouver by sampling ten buildings and tracing their assessment records from 2004 to 2024.

Also indicated in the graph by the blue line are the vacancy rates for Downtown Vancouver commercial office space.
